DON'T BELIEVE IT

HOMER CROY DOES NOT AGREE WITH GOVERNOR MAJOR.

NOT HAPPIEST DAYS

Of One's Life When a Boy to Run Away and Go Swimming—He Tried It.

Homer Croy doesn't agree with Governor Major that the happiest days of one's life are those when, as a boy, one runs away from home to go swimming. He answers the governor's statement in this week's issue of Collier's Weekly as follows:

I have been a boy on a farm and have run away, swimming, Sunday afternoon, but my great love for the truth keeps me from saying that these were the happiest days of my boyhood.

One Sunday I invited two boys to come home with me after Sunday school. At dinner pa told me not to go swimming in the creek that afternoon, as I might get the yellow jaundice. Yellow jaundice becomes very few people. Yellow jaundice makes a person look too much as though somebody had dropped an egg in full possession of its powers on him and then had maliciously hidden the towel.

We boys wandered out to the creek. We looked into the cool depths of the water, but we couldn't see any yellow jaundice. We felt that it had been a backward season for yellow jaundice and that probably all the spawn had been killed. For some reason or other I forgot all about what pa had said, and in a fit of absent mindedness took off my clothes. When next I noticed what I was doing I had water in my ear.

We swam down the creek and made a slippery bank, where we would go up to the top and coast down on the lower end of our spinal column and our elbows. Tiring of this we threw mud at each other, lifting our voices in light hearted laughter. I had just planted a large, pliable handful of mud in the ear of one of the fellows, and was laughing at his plight, when I saw pa coming down by the creek with a long, shapely hazel brush sprout in his hand. Then it suddenly occurred to me what pa had said at dinner.

I felt nonplused at myself for having forgotten it, and decided to go to some quiet spot and think it over alone. With me to think was to act. I acted with great celerity. It was the best brand of celerity I had ever come across.

I darted out through the underbrush toward my clothes, but some unthinking person had removed my raiment. The person had left no clues. I would have been more content if he had taken the clews and left the clothes.

I must have clothes! What would people think if they met me on the moor with nothing on except a mud bath? I wanted to save the people all the embarrassment I could, so I streaked it for the house of a neighbor. Here I intended to bathe in the water tank and get enough clothes to return home. But the neighbor's dog did not know this. He misunderstood my plans. He thought I had designs on the house. But I hadn't on a single design. All I had on was a layer of gumbo and a friendly mien. I had no place to put my hands. The pockets on my friendly mien were missing.

The dog was a large, quick tempered creature and rushed at me impulsively. Without my trousers I kept wondering what he would find to set his teeth into. He came at me rapidly, as if that wasn't worrying him. It worried me greatly, although I said nothing to him about it. When he came at me I withdrew. I withdrew so fast that I did not stop to open the gate for him.

Although I was not hampered by any wearing apparel or finery of any kind, I did not make the speed I desired. The dog was good at running. I don't know whether he was bred for running or not—I did not stop to inquire. I did not stop to cavil. I had left all my cavil in my other clothes. The dog snapped at my calf. I removed it as rapidly as I could, and spoke to him in a deep gutteral, but he paid no heed to my wish to be left alone. Finally I reached the high wooden gate behind our barn and mounted it. Once I was safe, the dog turned and withdrew in the direction whence he came. No effort was made on my part to detain him. Just as I drew in a sigh of relief I heard a step. It was pa with the same hazel sprout in his hand.

Our greeting was short and our conversation desultory. When I came down pa told me to turn my back to him, although I felt that this was not manners. But immediately I felt something else. I stood with my back to him for a long while, first on one foot, then on the other. Part of the time I spent in midair. When pa and I had finished with the hazel sprout it was about worn out. So was pa, and I myself felt that we had accomplished enough for one day.

That night at supper mother looked at me and exclaimed:

"Why, son, it beats me where you got that mud!"

"It beats me where I got it, too!" I answered fervently, but mother thought mine was just a fill-in answer.

Governor Major's happiest days may have been the ones when he ran away and went swimming on Sunday, but his father must have patronized a different hazel patch from mine.

The New Pastor of the Baptist Church

REV. LOUIS M. HALE.

The accompanying cut is of Rev. L. M. Hale, the new Baptist minister, who began his pastorate here last Sunday. Rev. Hale was born near Shelbina, Mo., in 1882. He lived on the farm until he was 19, when he entered the Baptist college at Blackwell, Okla., where he studied for one year. He later entered William Jewell college, at Liberty, Mo., and was graduated in the spring of 1910. That fall he took up his studies again in the Southern Baptist Theological seminary at Louisville, Ky., and was graduated last May.

During his entire collegiate course, Rev. Hale did active work in the ministry. He preached at La Plata, Mo., while at college, and when he entered the seminary at Louisville he obtained a pastorate at Scottsburg, Ind. He remained at Scottsburg until he was called to the Maryville church. On his way here he went to Blackwell, Okla., where he was married September 3 to Miss Hattie George Babb, whom he had met during his year in college there.

Rev. and Mrs. Hale are now staying t the home of Senator Anderson Craig, but hope to get into their own home, the Arthur Andrews property, on South Buchanan street, next week.

URGED FOR SUPERINTENDENT.

Prof. Oakerson Would Make a Good Man at the Head of the State Schools.

The following is what the Skidmore New Era thinks about Professor Oakerson and his running for state superintendent of schools:

W. M. Oakerson, county superintendent of public schools of Nodaway county, is being urged for state superintendent of schools at the election to be held next year.

Nodaway county never had a better superintendent of schools or a greater booster along all lines of education. He is not only keenly alive to all school interest, but is found in the front rank boosting every proposition which has for its object the advancement of the interests of his people or any of the interests of the county he represents.

He would make a good man for the state to place at the head of her schools and he has all Northwest Missouri at his back ready and anxious to support him.

Len Daise of Graham and Fred Hutchison, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Hutchison, will leave Friday night for Columbia, where they will take up the civil engineering course at the state university.

Mrs. Wm. Davenport and daughter, Edna, who were called here several weeks ago on account of the death of Mrs. Davenport's father, Logan Holt, will leave Saturday morning for their home in St. Petersburg, Florida.

WILL OPEN MONDAY

MARYVILLE SCHOOLS ARE READY FOR FALL TERM.

NORMAL OPENS ALSO

Business College Has Been Open for Two Weeks—School Activities in Full Swing.

The week of grace for the school children of Maryville is almost at its close, and doubtless there are many of the little learners who wish that the drouth had continued. The coming of the rains and the improved water situation, however, has made it possible to open the city schools next Monday, September 15, beginning the nine months task of the teachers, pupils and truant officer. Monday is also the opening day of the fall term of the Normal, and with the Business college already nearly two weeks on its way the school activities of the town will be in full swing three days from now.

The faculty members of the Normal who have been traveling in all the counties of the district this week will return Saturday to prepare their work for the opening of school next week. They have been advertising the Normal, visiting schools and gathering data for the school here.

Already the students are returning to town, and the enrollment at the Normal will probably be large Monday, for class work begins Tuesday.

There is only one vacancy in the faculty of the city schools and that is Miss Winifred Ashby, the science department teacher, who wired her resignation on Thursday. The school board at first refused to accept same and wired back to that effect. Miss Ashby sent a reply in which she stated that she had been selected to teach in Chicago the coming year.

The school board has received many applications for the position and will probably make a selection Saturday. Miss Ashby has been connected with the Maryville high school for the past three years. She has a brother living in Chicago.

Josh Neal has been employed as janitor for the Central school building. He is to hire an assistant.

IS TAKING THE LEAD.

What the DeKalb County Herald Has to Say About the Normal School.

The following is from this week's DeKalb County Herald of Maysville, Mo.:

Mr. T. H. Cook, professor of American history in the Maryville State Normal, has been spending the week in the schools of DeKalb county collecting information concerning conditions in the county. The fifth district Normal school is taking the lead in the educational progress of Northwest Missouri. The president has seen a vision of the opportunities possessed by the normal schools of the state and has begun a movement to take advantage of these opportunities. He feels that, since it is the work of the schools to fit their students to go out into the schools of Missouri as teachers, these teachers should be truly prepared for the work which they will have to do. He desires that every teacher who goes out from the Maryville Normal as a teacher will carry with him some knowledge of the social conditions and economic problems of the community in which he will teach. For this reason he has planned that each teacher of the Normal shall spend a week in one county of the northwest district working with the teachers of that county and studying the problems found in the rural communities. It is not the intention of these teachers to come into our schools as critics, but as friends and seekers after truth, and the schools of DeKalb county welcome their assistance in solving the problems that confront us.

Mr. Cook and County Superintendent Swails have been visiting the schools together and report that they are well pleased with the conditions of the DeKalb county schools.

Real Estate Deals.

Through the agency of Ed Otis was announced the sale of the Germing farm, one mile south of town, to Drs. G. A. Nash and F. M. Ryan. The farm contains eighty acres and the consideration was $10,600. The Jim Palmer farm, eight miles northeast of Maryville, was sold to Ed Holmes. The tract contained 120 acres and the price was $100 an acre.

Band to Parnell.

The band left Friday for Parnell, where they are to furnish music for the Parnell races today and Saturday.

CAMPAIGN TO BEGIN

THE DEADLY GRADE CROSSING TO BE ABOLISHED.

A STUPENDOUS TASK

The State Utility Commission Has Undertaken to Solve a Hard and Serious Problem.

The deadly grade crossing is to go in Missouri. It is a stupendous task which the state utility commission is undertaking. It is going to take some time, too, to abolish the many death traps that each year take a heavy toll in human lives.

"The commission feels the only way to handle this problem," John M. Atkinson, the chairman, said yesterday, "is to begin. We will do as much as we can to eliminate the grade crossings each year. We'll get somewhere. If we sit back dismayed at the immensity of the problem, Missouri will be in ten years just where it is today."

About September 15 the campaign on the grade crossing is to begin. On that day James Lawrence Harrop, a Wisconsin engineer, will arrive in Missouri and take up a study and investigation of the problem. Mr. Harrop was one of the experts employed by the Wisconsin tax and railway commission. Mr. Atkinson studied his work, liked it and hired him. Missouri has done practically nothing to eliminate dangerous grade crossings, except what the railroads themselves have done to lessen the number of damage suits.

The last legislature, in passing the state utilities law, left with the commission authority to eliminate grade crossings. None can be established in the future without consent of the commission. How to eliminate the most dangerous is the problem.

WILL BE A GOOD CROP.

Corn Around Skidmore Will Make a Good Crop—Some Will Make 40 Bushels to the Acre.

Talk about "alfalfa as a drouth resister," what is the matter with Nodaway county corn as a drouth resister? True, we haven't a "bumper" crop, true it is not anything to what it promised to be the last of July or the first of August, but after all, isn't it remarkable that there are so many good fields of corn in Nodaway county as we actually do have?

The Skidmore New Era, in speaking of the corn crop in that community, says.

Dan Slawson says that he has corn that will make 40 bushels to the acre. Dave White says he has a field of corn that will make 35 bushels, and his whole crop will average 25 bushels to the acre. 'Squire A. M. Long says his crop will average from 25 to 30 bushels, and plenty of his neighbors have as good corn as he has. C. W. Brown thinks the corn in his part of the country, as far as he has seen, will make better than twenty bushels to the acre on an average. J. R. Bagby, J. D. Montgomery and W. R. Linville each have brought samples of corn from their fields to town that look fairly good for any year—of course, not perfect ears of corn but good, sound ears that will turn off lots of feed and put fat on big red steers.

John Gex of Hughes township says that while it has been exceedingly dry in their section, perhaps as dry as any locality in the county, some fields will make as high as 40 bushels to the acre, and a number of them will average 20 to 25 bushels.

These are all good men and know what it takes to make a corn crop, and they are very optimistic over the prospects.

W. R. Linville says land in Nodaway county ought to raise in value $15 per acre, as no country in the world will stand such a drouth as well as we did here.

NO WORD RECEIVED

From H. R. Hancock, Who Disappeared Wednesday, September 3—Mrs. Hancock to Kansas City.

No word has been received up to Thursday from H. R. Hancock, who disappeared from Maryville Wednesday, September 3.

Mrs. Hancock is still in a nervous condition, and she and her daughter, Miss Mildred Hancock, are staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Lewis. They are selling their household goods and intend to leave for Kansas City next week, where they will make their home.

Theodore Robinson will leave Saturday night for Columbia to attend the state university.

MORE BIRTHS THAN DEATHS.

The Stork Came Out Ahead in August in Polk township and Maryville.

The report of the births and deaths for Polk township for the month of August shows that there were 16 births and 11 deaths. Of this number 12 births were for Maryville and Maryville also had 7 deaths.

Frank Taylor, a Well Expert, to Take Up Well Supply of Water With City Authorities.

Frank Tyler of Villisca, Iowa, will be in Maryville Sunday to go over the situation here in regard to a well supply of water. He will confer with the board of public works. It is probable that before long well tests will be made to see if sufficient water can be secured.

SMALL CROWD AT CONCERT.

Owing to the Cool Weather Only a Few People Heard the Band Thursday Night.

The band concert was given last night as announced, but only a few people heard it. The inclemency of the weather all day had evidently given many of the people the impression that the concert would not be held, and by staying away they missed an excellent program. Although the crowd was small, every number on the program was given and was appreciated by the hearers.

The party will also look over other attractions at that place and if desirable, will secure them.

SUES FOR DAMAGES

ALIENATION SUIT BROUGHT BY THOMAS ASHBROOK.

LOST WIFE'S AFFECTION

Claims W. I. Gray Wrongfully and Wickedly Conspired to Deprive Him of Wife's Society.

An alienation suit for $15,000 actual and $10,000 punitive damages were filed Friday by Attorney B. R. Martin of St. Joseph for Thomas Ashbrook against William I. Gray, in Circuit Clerk Rathbun's office. Mr. Ashbrook lives south of Ravenwood and Mr. Gray is city marshal of Ravenwood.

The petition states that during August, 1913, the defendant wrongfully and wickedly conspired to injure the plaintiff and to deprive him of the comfort and society of his wife, enticed Ida Ashbrook away and alienated and destroyed the affection she once had for the said plaintiff.

Ashbrook is the same man that was arrested August 11 for shooting up the town on his way from Maryville to his home. He fired several shots while on the state road east of town. He pleaded guilty to the charge before Justice of the Peace W. L. Johnson and was fined $5 and costs, amounting in all to $15.05.

KILLED BY A HORSE.

Lon Baublitts of Parnell Fatally Injured at Las Animas, Col.

Word reached Parnell today that Lon Baublitts was killed by a horse last Tuesday near Las Animas, Col. Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Baublitts, his parents, received a telegram Tuesday telling of his death, but the cause was not stated. They left that evening for Las Animas. The message that came today said that Mr. Baublitts was driving with a friend in a buggy to Colorado Springs. They stopped at a watering place, and Mr. Baublitts got out of the buggy to unrein the horse. In some way the bridle slipped off the horse's head, frightened it so that it started to run. Mr. Baublitts was dragged along under the horse's feet and his neck and an arm were broken.

TOTAL RAINFALL OF 1.43 INCHES.

Rain Has Put New Life in the Farmers and Fall Pastures—Crops Greatly Helped.

With the rain of Thursday, amounting to .27 of an inch, the rainfall totaled 1.43 inches up to the present time. The rain has also put new life in the farmers and fall pasture and crops have been greatly helped. It has also helped the ground for the sowing of wheat, and it is predicted that there will be more acres of wheat in this county the coming year than ever before.

With the rain the weather has been very pleasant and cool. On Thursday the temperature went up to 90. At 7 o'clock this, Friday, morning it was 52. Frost is possible here during the month. In fact we generally have it in September—some times light, sometimes of a killing severity. We look for a frost about the 19th this year. Overcoats will be comfortable and the cobwebby inner garments will be passed. Windows will be closed and the screens ordered stored. Furnace fires not only will be comfortable, but necessary. The sleeping porch army—those who are not extremely hardy—will establish winter headquarters in steam heated bedrooms.

Remember a week from today, about September 19th.

We had frost here on the 10th, 1910; on the 19th, 1911; on the 18th, 1912; on the 9th, 1907, which was the earliest September frost in many years.

Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Horton will leave Friday night for their future home in Pine Bluffs, Ark., after a visit since Sunday morning in Maryville. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Horton's Mother, Mrs. J. D. Felter, who will make her home with them.

MOTHER! IS CHILD'S STOMACH SOUR, SICK?

If Tongue is Coated or if Cross, Feverish, Constipated, Give "California Syrup of Figs."

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Some Opinions of Great Critics and Educators on the Stoddard Library.

The Stoddard Library gives to parents and children, who have a keen desire for education and wholesome entertainment the best thoughts in the best works of the finest minds of the world's history. Any work by Mr. Stoddard is deserving of careful consideration, but in the Stoddard Library I believe the author has accomplished his greatest good.

WM. M. HYMAN,
Principal Woodland Schools, California.

Mr. Stoddard is a born entertainer. He knows well what will entertain the average mind, and into this work he has put his mature thought that the need felt might be met; and with it mothers may impress their children's minds with the best, in a most interesting and entertaining way.

REV. C. DONE, Ph. D.,
Pastor Presbyterian Church, Portland, Maine.

I have examined Mr. Stoddard's library with care and take pleasure in endorsing the general principles of its selection as well as the actual results which have been achieved.

DR. HAROLD D'WITT FULLER,
Dep't of Comparative Literature, Harvard University.

To own and read the Stoddard Library is to form acquaintance with the good and great in literature. Nobody can afford to miss the joy and profit derived from such acquaintance.

G. A. SCOTT,
Pastor M. E. Church, Des Moines, Ia.

I congratulate John L. Stoddard on his bringing together in "The Stoddard Library" such a magnificent collection of "selections" from the world's best literature.

W. M. DAVIDSON,
Supt. Schools, Omaha, Neb.

I have the Stoddard Library. The charming illustrations, in colors, of historic and literary scenes, fittingly help to set forth the true kernel—the literature therein contained a feature that will make it a practical aid is the fact that it is exhaustively indexed topically and personally.

MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Ends Indigestion, Gas, Dyspepsia and Stomach Misery in Five Minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; beside, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.—Advertisement.

MAYOR GAYNOR DIES SUDDENLY

Passes Away on Steamer Baltic, Hearing Other Side.

DEATH DUE TO HEART FAILURE

Old Wound in Throat From Bullet of Would-Be Assassin Indirect Cause. New York Municipal Campaign Halted—Long Active in Public Life.

New York, Sept. 12.—William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York city, voyaging over sea on the steamer Baltic in the hope of regaining his strength to enter the three-cornered municipal campaign as a candidate for re-election, died suddenly on the Baltic as the steamer was within a few hundred miles of the Irish coast. The first news of his death, flashed by wireless and relayed by cable from Europe, reached his secretary, Robert Adamson. The mayor had succumbed to heart failure, the message said.

Later dispatches from his son, Rufus W. Gaynor, who was his father's only traveling companion, gave details which showed that the end had come with shocking suddenness.

"Father died at 7:07 a. m. on Wednesday, the tenth," said the message from the son received by Secretary Adamson. "His death was due to heart failure. He was seated in his deck chair at the time. I and the nurse and the ship's doctor were with him. I discovered him unconscious in his chair, though still alive. He died about three minutes later without recognizing any of us. Everything possible was done, but he seemed to go as a candle flickers out. Am all right and am trying to arrange to bring the body back on the Lustania, sailing from Liverpool on the thirteenth."

Heart Weak for Years.

That the mayor's heart had been in a weakened condition for years was the statement of physicians who had treated him at the time he was shot in the neck and almost done to death by an insane discharged employee of the city in August, 1910. They would not declare their belief that the wound inflicted by the assassin's bullet had led directly to the end, but did affirm that his general resistance had been lessened thereby to a very great extent.

Plans for a public funeral to be held, probably on Sept. 22, will be made by the board of estimate.

The death of Mayor Gaynor automatically transferred the office of mayor to Colonel Adolph L. Kline, a Republican, president of the board of aldermen. Colonel Kline took the oath of office and his first official act was to call the board of estimate together to lay plans for the public funeral services of his predecessor. Mayor Kline then declared that during his short term of office, which will terminate on Jan. 1, 1914, he would carry out the policies of Mayor Gaynor, as far as he knew them.

Campaign Halted.

While messages of sympathy from political leaders and from all parts of the country poured into the mayor's office in the city hall and at the Gaynor country home at St. James, L. I., the heated municipal campaign came to a sudden stop, although many conferences were held to review the sudden change which Mayor Gaynor's death made in the general situation. George McAneny, fusion candidate for president of the board of aldermen, announced that he had decided to postpone his vacation abroad, upon which he had planned to start tomorrow. McAneny and William A. Prendergast, fusion nominee for city comptroller, were in conference with Gaynor leaders relative to accepting their indorsement when news of the mayor's death was announced.

Mayor Gaynor was placed at the head of the independent ticket after Tammany Hall had refused him a renomination. He was to lead those who opposed the regular Democratic organization and yet were unwilling to join the fusion of Republicans and Progressives. His standard was the shovel, reminding voters of his efforts to favor the building of the new subways. The mayor also said it was emblematic of his intention to "clean the grafters out."

He was expected to attack Tammany Hall sharply, politically, as soon as he returned to the city. Before his departure he issued a characteristic statement, levelled at Tammany Hall leaders and other political opponents, in which he referred to them as "miserable scamps," and asserted that they were seeking his "moral assassination."

Robert Stoll, who has been dangerously ill with typhoid fever at St. Francis hospital, is improving.

Would Blow Out Dam.

Trainmaster W. H. Eckard of the Wabash Railroad company, with headquarters at Stanberry, visited the new dam north of Burlington Junction Friday and told C. E. Walker, who had charge of the construction, that if their supply of water was cut off at the pumping station on the river bank northwest of Burlington Junction they would blow out the dam. Mr. Walker told the official that he was working under the direction of the drainage board and he would have to take the matter up with the other members. When Mr. Eckard approached Wm. Blackford on the proposition the president of the board told him to go ahead and he would be at the blowing.

The dam was finished the last of the week and the water began to run through the new ditch Saturday. Nothing further has developed on the "blowing up" process, and the drainage board fears no trouble, as the charter granted by the state gives them the right to change the bed of the stream.—Burlington Junction Post.

Death of an Old Soldier.

Joseph Holliday Galbraith was a native of Pennsylvania, born April 26, 1834. He was married to Miss Catherine A. Kirkland of Stevenson county, at Freeport, Ill., on September 25, 1855. To this union were born nine children, of whom two survive their father—Sherman A. Galbraith of Humansville, Mo., and George F. of Pickering.

Mr. Galbraith served three years in the Union army, in Company G, Ninety-Second Illinois infantry volunteers.

Father Galbraith was converted in his youth in the Presbyterian church and was in that fold until he resided where there was no Presbyterian church, when he joined the United Brethren church. Later, for like reason, he united with the Methodist Episcopal church.

He departed this life on September 5th, 1913.

Funeral services were held on Sunday in the Methodist church at Pickering, Rev. H. J. Dueker, pastor in charge.

Interment was made in the White Oak cemetery.

Joseph Galbraith was industrious even in his old age. He was a good citizen.

A Good Woman Crowned.

Charlotte Elizabeth Alexander, nee Springs, was born in Merian, Williamson county, Ill., March 23, 1835. Here she resided during the time of her childhood and youth. She moved to Centerville, Ia., in 1854.

On February 28, 1855, she was married to John L. Alexander, with whom she shared the joys and sorrows of married life for over fifty-eight years. To this union there were born ten children, five of whom survive the mother—William C., Thomas J. and Charles B., all of Pickering, Mo.; Mrs. Zippora A. Adcock of Denver, Col., and James E. of Lincoln, Neb.

Mother Alexander was converted at Centerville, Ia., in 1869, and then and there joined the United Brethren church. She remained in that communion until they moved to Missouri, in 1873, when by letter she joined the Methodist Episcopal church. She departed this life in the triumph of the Christian's faith early September 7th, 1913. She reached the ripe age of 78 years and 5½ months.

The funeral services, conducted by her pastor, the Rev. H. J. Dueker, were held in the Methodist church at Pickering. Interment was made in the Oak Hill cemetery of Maryville.

DON'T BELIEVE IT

HOMER CROY DOES NOT AGREE WITH GOVERNOR MAJOR.

NOT HAPPIEST DAYS

Of One's Life When a Boy to Run Away and Go Swimming—He Tried It.

Homer Croy doesn't agree with Governor Major that the happiest days of one's life are those when, as a boy, one runs away from home to go swimming. He answers the governor's statement in this week's issue of Collier's Weekly as follows:

I have been a boy on a farm and have run away, swimming, Sunday afternoon, but my great love for the truth keeps me from saying that these were the happiest days of my boyhood.

One Sunday I invited two boys to come home with me after Sunday school. At dinner pa told me not to go swimming in the creek that afternoon, as I might get the yellow jaundice. Yellow jaundice becomes very few people. Yellow jaundice makes a person look too much as though somebody had dropped an egg in full possession of its powers on him and then had maliciously hidden the towel.

We boys wandered out to the creek. We looked into the cool depths of the water, but we couldn't see any yellow jaundice. We felt that it had been a backward season for yellow jaundice and that probably all the spawn had been killed. For some reason or other I forgot all about what pa had said, and in a fit of absent mindedness took off my clothes. When next I noticed what I was doing I had water in my ear.

We swam down the creek and made a slippery bank, where we would go up to the top and coast down on the lower end of our spinal column and our elbows. Tiring of this we threw mud at each other, lifting our voices in light hearted laughter. I had just planted a large, pliable handful of mud in the ear of one of the fellows, and was laughing at his plight, when I saw pa coming down by the creek with a long, shapely hazel brush sprout in his hand. Then it suddenly occurred to me what pa had said at dinner.

I felt nonplused at myself for having forgotten it, and decided to go to some quiet spot and think it over alone. With me to think was to act. I acted with great celerity. It was the best brand of celerity I had ever come across.

I darted out through the underbrush toward my clothes, but some unthinking person had removed my raiment. The person had left no clues. I would have been more content if he had taken the clews and left the clothes.

I must have clothes! What would people think if they met me on the moor with nothing on except a mud bath? I wanted to save the people all the embarrassment I could, so I streaked it for the house of a neighbor. Here I intended to bathe in the water tank and get enough clothes to return home. But the neighbor's dog did not know this. He misunderstood my plans. He thought I had designs on the house. But I hadn't on a single design. All I had on was a layer of gumbo and a friendly mien. I had no place to put my hands. The pockets on my friendly mien were missing.

The dog was a large, quick tempered creature and rushed at me impulsively. Without my trousers I kept wondering what he would find to set his teeth into. He came at me rapidly, as if that wasn't worrying him. It worried me greatly, although I said nothing to him about it. When he came at me I withdrew. I withdrew so fast that I did not stop to open the gate for him.

Although I was not hampered by any wearing apparel or finery of any kind, I did not make the speed I desired. The dog was good at running. I don't know whether he was bred for running or not—I did not stop to inquire. I did not stop to cavil. I had left all my cavil in my other clothes. The dog snapped at my calf. I removed it as rapidly as I could, and spoke to him in a deep gutteral, but he paid no heed to my wish to be left alone. Finally I reached the high wooden gate behind our barn and mounted it. Once I was safe, the dog turned and withdrew in the direction whence he came. No effort was made on my part to detain him. Just as I drew in a sigh of relief I heard a step. It was pa with the same hazel sprout in his hand.

Our greeting was short and our conversation desultory. When I came down pa told me to turn my back to him, although I felt that this was not manners. But immediately I felt something else. I stood with my back to him for a long while, first on one foot, then on the other. Part of the time I spent in midair. When pa and I had finished with the hazel sprout it was about worn out. So was pa, and I myself felt that we had accomplished enough for one day.

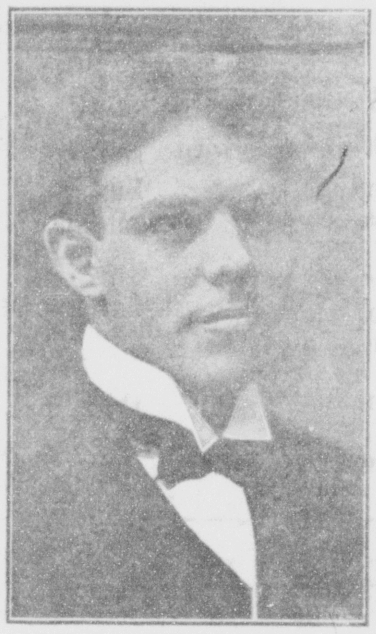
That night at supper mother looked at me and exclaimed:

"Why, son, it beats me where you got that mud!"

"It beats me where I got it, too!" I answered fervently, but mother thought mine was just a fill-in answer.

Governor Major's happiest days may have been the ones when he ran away and went swimming on Sunday, but his father must have patronized a different hazel patch from mine.

The New Pastor of the Baptist Church



REV. LOUIS M. HALE.

The accompanying cut is of Rev. L. M. Hale, the new Baptist minister, who began his pastorate here last Sunday. Rev. Hale was born near Shelbina, Mo., in 1882. He lived on the farm until he was 19, when he entered the Baptist college at Blackwell, Okla., where he studied for one year. He later entered William Jewell college, at Liberty, Mo., and was graduated in the spring of 1910. That fall he took up his studies again in the Southern Baptist Theological seminary at Louisville, Ky., and was graduated last May.

During his entire collegiate course, Rev. Hale did active work in the ministry. He preached at La Plata, Mo., while at college, and when he entered the seminary at Louisville he obtained a pastorate at Scottsburg, Ind. He remained at Scottsburg until he was called to the Maryville church. On his way here he went to Blackwell, Okla., where he was married September 3 to Miss Hattie George Babb, whom he had met during his year in college there.

Rev. and Mrs. Hale are now staying t the home of Senator Anderson Craig, but hope to get into their own home, the Arthur Andrews property, on South Buchanan street, next week.

URGED FOR SUPERINTENDENT.

Prof. Oakerson Would Make a Good Man at the Head of the State Schools.

The following is what the Skidmore New Era thinks about Professor Oakerson and his running for state superintendent of schools:

W. M. Oakerson, county superintendent of public schools of Nodaway county, is being urged for state superintendent of schools at the election to be held next year.

Nodaway county never had a better superintendent of schools or a greater booster along all lines of education. He is not only keenly alive to all school interest, but is found in the front rank boosting every proposition which has for its object the advancement of the interests of his people or any of the interests of the county he represents.

He would make a good man for the state to place at the head of her schools and he has all Northwest Missouri at his back ready and anxious to support him.

Len Daise of Graham and Fred Hutchison, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Hutchison, will leave Friday night for Columbia, where they will take up the civil engineering course at the state university.

Mrs. Wm. Davenport and daughter, Edna, who were called here several weeks ago on account of the death of Mrs. Davenport's father, Logan Holt, will leave Saturday morning for their home in St. Petersburg, Florida.

WILL OPEN MONDAY

MARYVILLE SCHOOLS ARE READY FOR FALL TERM.

NORMAL OPENS ALSO

Business College Has Been Open for Two Weeks—School Activities in Full Swing.

The week of grace for the school children of Maryville is almost at its close, and doubtless there are many of the little learners who wish that the drouth had continued. The coming of the rains and the improved water situation, however, has made it possible to open the city schools next Monday, September 15, beginning the nine months task of the teachers, pupils and truant officer. Monday is also the opening day of the fall term of the Normal, and with the Business college already nearly two weeks on its way the school activities of the town will be in full swing three days from now.

The faculty members of the Normal who have been traveling in all the counties of the district this week will return Saturday to prepare their work for the opening of school next week. They have been advertising the Normal, visiting schools and gathering data for the school here.

Already the students are returning to town, and the enrollment at the Normal will probably be large Monday, for class work begins Tuesday.

There is only one vacancy in the faculty of the city schools and that is Miss Winifred Ashby, the science department teacher, who wired her resignation on Thursday. The school board at first refused to accept same and wired back to that effect. Miss Ashby sent a reply in which she stated that she had been selected to teach in Chicago the coming year.

The school board has received many applications for the position and will probably make a selection Saturday. Miss Ashby has been connected with the Maryville high school for the past three years. She has a brother living in Chicago.

Josh Neal has been employed as janitor for the Central school building. He is to hire an assistant.

IS TAKING THE LEAD.

What the DeKalb County Herald Has to Say About the Normal School.

The following is from this week's DeKalb County Herald of Maysville, Mo.:

Mr. T. H. Cook, professor of American history in the Maryville State Normal, has been spending the week in the schools of DeKalb county collecting information concerning conditions in the county. The fifth district Normal school is taking the lead in the educational progress of Northwest Missouri. The president has seen a vision of the opportunities possessed by the normal schools of the state and has begun a movement to take advantage of these opportunities. He feels that, since it is the work of the schools to fit their students to go out into the schools of Missouri as teachers, these teachers should be truly prepared for the work which they will have to do. He desires that every teacher who goes out from the Maryville Normal as a teacher will carry with him some knowledge of the social conditions and economic problems of the community in which he will teach. For this reason he has planned that each teacher of the Normal shall spend a week in one county of the northwest district working with the teachers of that county and studying the problems found in the rural communities. It is not the intention of these teachers to come into our schools as critics, but as friends and seekers after truth, and the schools of DeKalb county welcome their assistance in solving the problems that confront us.

Mr. Cook and County Superintendent Swails have been visiting the schools together and report that they are well pleased with the conditions of the DeKalb county schools.

Through the agency of Ed Otis was announced the sale of the Germing farm, one mile south of town, to Drs. G. A. Nash and F. M. Ryan. The farm contains eighty acres and the consideration was $10,600. The Jim Palmer farm, eight miles northeast of Maryville, was sold to Ed Holmes. The tract contained 120 acres and the price was $100 an acre.

The band left Friday for Parnell, where they are to furnish music for the Parnell races today and Saturday.

CAMPAIGN TO BEGIN

THE DEADLY GRADE CROSSING TO BE ABOLISHED.

A STUPENDOUS TASK

The State Utility Commission Has Undertaken to Solve a Hard and Serious Problem.

The deadly grade crossing is to go in Missouri. It is a stupendous task which the state utility commission is undertaking. It is going to take some time, too, to abolish the many death traps that each year take a heavy toll in human lives.

"The commission feels the only way to handle this problem," John M. Atkinson, the chairman, said yesterday, "is to begin. We will do as much as we can to eliminate the grade crossings each year. We'll get somewhere. If we sit back dismayed at the immensity of the problem, Missouri will be in ten years just where it is today."

About September 15 the campaign on the grade crossing is to begin. On that day James Lawrence Harrop, a Wisconsin engineer, will arrive in Missouri and take up a study and investigation of the problem. Mr. Harrop was one of the experts employed by the Wisconsin tax and railway commission. Mr. Atkinson studied his work, liked it and hired him. Missouri has done practically nothing to eliminate dangerous grade crossings, except what the railroads themselves have done to lessen the number of damage suits.

The last legislature, in passing the state utilities law, left with the commission authority to eliminate grade crossings. None can be established in the future without consent of the commission. How to eliminate the most dangerous is the problem.

WILL BE A GOOD CROP.

Corn Around Skidmore Will Make a Good Crop—Some Will Make 40 Bushels to the Acre.

Talk about "alfalfa as a drouth resister," what is the matter with Nodaway county corn as a drouth resister? True, we haven't a "bumper" crop, true it is not anything to what it promised to be the last of July or the first of August, but after all, isn't it remarkable that there are so many good fields of corn in Nodaway county as we actually do have?

The Skidmore New Era, in speaking of the corn crop in that community, says:

Dan Slawson says that he has corn that will make 40 bushels to the acre. Dave White says he has a field of corn that will make 35 bushels, and his whole crop will average 25 bushels to the acre. 'Squire A. M. Long says his crop will average from 25 to 30 bushels, and plenty of his neighbors have as good corn as he has. C. W. Brown thinks the corn in his part of the country, as far as he has seen, will make better than twenty bushels to the acre on an average. J. R. Bagby, J. D. Montgomery and W. R. Linville each have brought samples of corn from their fields to town that look fairly good for any year—of course, not perfect ears of corn but good, sound ears that will turn off lots of feed and put fat on big red steers.

John Gex of Hughes township says that while it has been exceedingly dry in their section, perhaps as dry as any locality in the county, some fields will make as high as 40 bushels to the acre, and a number of them will average 20 to 25 bushels.

These are all good men and know what it takes to make a corn crop, and they are very optimistic over the prospects.

W. R. Linville says land in Nodaway county ought to raise in value $15 per acre, as no country in the world will stand such a drouth as well as we did here.

The Stork Came Out Ahead in August in Polk township and Maryville.

The report of the births and deaths for Polk township for the month of August shows that there were 16 births and 11 deaths. Of this number 12 births were for Maryville, and Maryville also had 7 deaths.

Frank Tyler of Villisca, Iowa, will be in Maryville Sunday to go over the situation here in regard to a well supply of water. He will confer with the board of public works. It is probable that before long well tests will be made to see if sufficient water can be secured.

SMALL CROWD AT CONCERT.

Owing to the Cool Weather Only a Few People Heard the Band Thursday Night.

The band concert was given last night as announced, but only a few people heard it. The inclemency of the weather all day had evidently given many of the people the impression that the concert would not be held, and by staying away they missed an excellent program. Although the crowd was small, every number on the program was given and was appreciated by the hearers.

Furray, charged with drunkeness, pleaded guilty and was given a fine of $2.00 and costs, amounting to $8.10, which was paid. Jonah Gill pleaded guilty to drunkeness and was given $2.00 and trimmings, amounting to $8.10, which were paid.

Misses Dale Hoffman and Helen Dean will return tonight from their visit in Shenandoah.

SUES FOR DAMAGES

ALIENATION SUIT BROUGHT BY THOMAS ASHBROOK.

LOST WIFE'S AFFECTION

Claims W. L. Gray Wrongfully and Wickedly Conspired to Deprive Him of Wife's Society.

An alienation suit for $15,000 actual and $10,000 punitive damages were filed Friday by Attorney B. R. Martin of St. Joseph for Thomas Ashbrook against William L. Gray, in Circuit Clerk Rathbun's office. Mr. Ashbrook lives south of Ravenwood and Mr. Gray is city marshal of Ravenwood.

The petition states that during August, 1913, the defendant wrongfully and wickedly conspired to injure the plaintiff and to deprive him of the comfort and society of his wife, enticed Ida Ashbrook away and alienated and destroyed the affection she once had for the said plaintiff.

Ashbrook is the same man that was arrested August 11 for shooting up the town on his way from Maryville to his home. He fired several shots while on the state road east of town. He pleaded guilty to the charge before Justice of the Peace W. L. Johnson and was fined $5 and costs, amounting in all to $15.05.

KILLED BY A HORSE.

Lon Baublitts of Parnell Fatally Injured at Las Animas, Col.

Word reached Parnell today that Lon Baublitts was killed by a horse last Tuesday near Las Animas, Col. Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Baublitts, his parents, received a telegram Tuesday telling of his death, but the cause was not stated. They left that evening for Las Animas. The message that came today said that Mr. Baublitts was driving with a friend in a buggy to Colorado Springs. They stopped at a watering place, and Mr. Baublitts got out of the buggy to unrein the horse. In some way the bridle slipped off the horse's head, frightened it so that it started to run. Mr. Baublitts was dragged along under the horse's feet and his neck and an arm were broken.

TOTAL RAINFALL OF 1.43 INCHES.

Rain Has Put New Life in the Farmers and Fall Pastures—Crops Greatly Helped.

With the rain of Thursday, amounting to .27 of an inch, the rainfall totaled 1.43 inches up to the present time. The rain has also put new life in the farmers and fall pasture and crops have been greatly helped. It has also helped the ground for the sowing of wheat, and it is predicted that there will be more acres of wheat in this county the coming year than ever before.

With the rain the weather has been very pleasant and cool. On Thursday the temperature went up to 90. At 7 o'clock this, Friday, morning it was 52.

Frost is possible here during the month. In fact we generally have it in September—some times light, sometimes of a killing severity. We look for a frost about the 19th this year. Overcoats will be comfortable and the cobwebby inner garments will be passed. Windows will be closed and the screens ordered stored. Furnace fires not only will be comfortable, but necessary. The sleeping porch army—those who are not extremely hardy—will establish winter headquarters in steam heated bedrooms.

Remember a week from today, about September 19th.

We had frost here on the 10th, 1910; on the 19th, 1911; on the 18th, 1912; on the 9th, 1907, which was the earliest September frost in many years.

Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Horton will leave Friday night for their future home in Pine Bluffs, Ark., after a visit since Sunday morning in Maryville. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Horton's Mother, Mrs. J. D. Felter, who will make her home with them.

MOTHER! IS CHILD'S STOMACH SOUR, SICK?

If Tongue is Coated or if Cross, Feverish, Constipated, Give "California Syrup of Figs."

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Some Opinions of Great Critics and Educators on the Stoddard Library.

The Stoddard Library gives to parents and children, who have a keen desire for education and wholesome entertainment the best thoughts in the best works of the finest minds of the world's history. Any work by Mr. Stoddard is deserving of careful consideration, but in the Stoddard Library I believe the author has accomplished his greatest good.

WM. M. HYMAN,
Principal Woodland Schools, California.

Mr. Stoddard is a born entertainer. He knows well what will entertain the average mind, and into this work he has put his mature thought that the need felt might be met; and with it mothers may impress their children's minds with the best, in a most interesting and entertaining way.

REV. C. DONE, Ph. D.,
Pastor Presbyterian Church, Portland, Maine.

I have examined Mr. Stoddard's library with care and take pleasure in endorsing the general principles of its selection as well as the actual results which have been achieved.

DR. HAROLD D'WITT FULLER,
Dep't of Comparative Literature, Harvard University.

To own and read the Stoddard Library is to form acquaintance with the good and great in literature. Nobody can afford to miss the joy and profit derived from such acquaintance.

G. A. SCOTT,
Pastor M. E. Church, Des Moines, Ia.

I congratulate John L. Stoddard on his bringing together in "The Stoddard Library" such a magnificent collection of "selections" from the world's best literature.

W. M. DAVIDSON,
Supt. Schools, Omaha, Neb.

I have the Stoddard Library. The charming illustrations, in colors, of historic and literary scenes, fittingly help to set forth the true kernel—the literature therein contained a feature that will make it a practical aid is the fact that it is exhaustively indexed topically and personally.

MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Ends Indigestion, Gas, Dyspepsia and Stomach Misery in Five Minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; beside, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.—Advertisement.

MAYOR GAYNOR DIES SUDDENLY

Passes Away on Steamer Baltic, Nearing Other Side.

DEATH DUE TO HEART FAILURE

Old Wound in Throat From Bullet of Would-Be Assassin Indirect Cause. New York Municipal Campaign Halted—Long Active in Public Life.

New York, Sept. 12.—William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York city, voyaging over sea on the steamer Baltic in the hope of regaining his strength to enter the three-cornered municipal campaign as a candidate for re-election, died suddenly on the Baltic as the steamer was within a few hundred miles of the Irish coast. The first news of his death, flashed by wireless and relayed by cable from Europe, reached his secretary, Robert Adamson. The mayor had succumbed to heart failure, the message said.

Later dispatches from his son, Rufus W. Gaynor, who was his father's only traveling companion, gave details which showed that the end had come with shocking suddenness.

"Father died at 7:07 a. m. on Wednesday, the tenth," said the message from the son received by Secretary Adamson. "His death was due to heart failure. He was seated in his deck chair at the time. I and the nurse and the ship's doctor were with him. I discovered him unconscious in his chair, though still alive. He died about three minutes later without recognizing any of us. Everything possible was done, but he seemed to go as a candle flickers out. Am all right and am trying to arrange to bring the body back on the Lustania, sailing from Liverpool on the thirteenth."

Heart Weak for Years.

That the mayor's heart had been in a weakened condition for years was the statement of physicians who had treated him at the time he was shot in the neck and almost done to death by an insane discharged employee of the city in August, 1910. They would not declare their belief that the wound inflicted by the assassin's bullet had led directly to the end, but did affirm that his general resistance had been lessened thereby to a very great extent.

Plans for a public funeral to be held, probably on Sept. 22, will be made by the board of estimate.

The death of Mayor Gaynor automatically transferred the office of mayor to Colonel Adolph L. Kline, a Republican, president of the board of aldermen. Colonel Kline took the oath of office and his first official act was to call the board of estimate together to lay plans for the public funeral services of his predecessor. Mayor Kline then declared that during his short term of office, which will terminate on Jan. 1, 1914, he would carry out the policies of Mayor Gaynor, as far as he knew them.

Campaign Halted.

While messages of sympathy from political leaders and from all parts of the country poured into the mayor's office in the city hall and at the Gaynor country home at St. Jar[illegible], L. I., the heated municipal campaign came to a sudden stop, although many conferences were held to review the sudden change which Mayor Gaynor's death made in the general situation. George McAneny, fusion candidate for president of the board of aldermen, announced that he had decided to postpone his vacation abroad, upon which he had planned to start tomorrow. McAneny and William A. Prendergast, fusion nominee for city comptroller, were in conference with Gaynor leaders relative to accepting their indorsement when news of the mayor's death was announced.

Mayor Gaynor was placed at the head of the independent ticket after Tammany Hall had refused him a renomination. He was to lead those who opposed the regular Democratic organization and yet were unwilling to join the fusion of Republicans and Progressives. His standard was the shovel, reminding voters of his efforts to favor the building of the new subways. The mayor also said it was emblematic of his intention to "clean the grafters out."

He was expected to attack Tammany Hall sharply, politically, as soon as he returned to the city. Before his departure he issued a characteristic statement, levelled at Tammany Hall leaders and other political opponents, in which he referred to them as "miserable scamps," and asserted that they were seeking his "moral assassination."

Robert Stoll, who has been dangerously ill with typhoid fever at St. Francis hospital, is improving.

Would Blow Out Dam.

Trainmaster W. H. Eckard of the Wabash Railroad company, with headquarters at Stanberry, visited the new dam north of Burlington Junction Friday and told C. E. Walker, who had charge of the construction, that if their supply of water was cut off at the pumping station on the river bank northwest of Burlington Junction they would blow out the dam. Mr. Walker told the official that he was working under the direction of the drainage board and he would have to take the matter up with the other members. When Mr. Eckard approached Wm. Blackford on the proposition the president of the board told him to go ahead and he would be at the blowing.

The dam was finished the last of the week and the water began to run through the new ditch Saturday. Nothing further has developed on the "blowing up" process, and the drainage board fears no trouble, as the charter granted by the state gives them the right to change the bed of the stream.—Burlington Junction Post.

REV. E. W. KILLION, Pastor.

A Good Woman Crowned.

Charlotte Elizabeth Alexander, nee Springs, was born in Merian, Williamson county, Ill., March 23, 1835. Here she resided during the time of her childhood and youth. She moved to Centerville, Ia., in 1854.

On February 28, 1855, she was married to John L. Alexander, with whom she shared the joys and sorrows of married life for over fifty-eight years. To this union there were born ten children, five of whom survive the mother—William C., Thomas J. and Charles B., all of Pickering, Mo.; Mrs. Zippora A. Adcock of Denver, Col., and James E. of Lincoln, Neb.

Mother Alexander was converted at Centerville, Ia., in 1869, and then and there joined the United Brethren church. She remained in that communion until they moved to Missouri, in 1873, when by letter she joined the Methodist Episcopal church. She departed this life in the triumph of the Christian's faith early September 7th, 1913. She reached the ripe age of 78 years and 5½ months.

The funeral services, conducted by her pastor, the Rev. H. J. Dueker, were held in the Methodist church at Pickering. Interment was made in the Oak Hill cemetery of Maryville.

Death of an Old Soldier.

Joseph Holliday Galbraith was a native of Pennsylvania, born April 26, 1834. He was married to Miss Catherine A. Kirkland of Stevenson county, at Freeport, Ill., on September 25, 1855. To this union were born nine children, of whom two survive their father—Sherman A. Galbraith of Humansville, Mo., and George F. of Pickering.

Mr. Galbraith served three years in the Union army, in Company G, Ninety-Second Illinois infantry volunteers.

Father Galbraith was converted in his youth in the Presbyterian church and was in that fold until he resided where there was no Presbyterian church, when he joined the United Brethren church. Later, for like reason, he united with the Methodist Episcopal church.

He departed this life on September 5th, 1913.

Funeral services were held on Sunday in the Methodist church at Pickering, Rev. H. J. Dueker, pastor in charge.

Interment was made in the White Oak cemetery.

Joseph Galbraith was industrious even in his old age. He was a good citizen.

GUILFORD ITEMS.

Mrs. William Jerauld was suddenly taken with appendicitis last night and was hurried to a St. Joseph hospital for an operation.

E. E. White, the merchant, is now packing his household goods at Elston, Ia., preparatory to moving them to Guilford, where he will conduct his business.

Mr. and Mrs. John Beggs went to St. Joseph today.

Prof. J. W. Byson, who has been a guest for several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Sheldon, returned Wednesday night to Fayette, where he will resume his work in Howard-Payne college.

CITY MARSHAL RESIGNS

Calaboose at Kingston, Mo., Is Sold for Hen House.

Kingston, Mo., Sept. 13.—Lante Oliver, city marshal of Kingston for fifteen years, resigned because, as he said, "there are no more duties for a marshal to perform in this town."

Once Marshal Oliver was a busy man. The door of the calaboose swung on well oiled hinges. Three drug stores did a saloon business without a bar. There were two pool halls and a bowling alley. But times changed, dry sentiment ran out two of the drug stores. There is only one now and it is law-abiding. Pool halls and bowling alley were closed up. Arrests were so few that the town council sold the calaboose at auction. Bole Brown bought it for a hen house.

Oliver said his patriotism made him ashamed to draw his salary, and, besides, if he ever found anyone to arrest he would have no place to put him, so he resigned.

BRIEF SKETCH OF MAYOR GAYNOR

Of the many tributes to Mayor Gaynor from men of prominence in public life, one from Theodore Roosevelt was among those made public.

"Mayor Gaynor's career has not only been distinguished, but in all its characteristics unique," said Colonel Roosevelt. "We have lost in him not only one of the most fearless, but one of the most original and interesting of all our public servants, national and local."

Recalls Attempt on His Life.

Mayor Gaynor's death recalls the attempt on his life made by an assassin at Hoboken in August of 1910. On this occasion the mayor had decided to take a brief vacation abroad under the same circumstances under which he left here a week ago. He was standing on the deck of the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, talking with friends and the center of a group of city officials at the time.

Into this friendly gathering James J. Gallagher, the would-be assassin, made his way unobserved. When close to the mayor he drew a revolver and fired a shot. The bullet penetrated Mr. Gaynor's throat. He suffered from this serious injury for many weeks, but finally recovered to a sufficient degree to enable him to resume his duties and was apparently none the worse for his experience until recently, when the wound began to trouble him again.

Gallagher had been dismissed from the dock department of the city of New York under Mayor Gaynor, and had repeatedly endeavored to induce the mayor to reinstate him. For his crime he was sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment. After little more than a year in prison he was transferred to the New Jersey state hospital for the insane at Trenton and died there last February.

Sketch of His Active Career.

William Jay Gaynor was born on a farm near Whitestown, N. Y., in 1851. He had to help the family there in its struggle for existence and in this fight he had to take time for his own education. He graduated from the Whitestown seminary, went to Boston to teach school and afterwards studied law in the office of Ward Hunt of Utica, who later became a justice of the supreme court of New York. In 1873 young Gaynor went to Brooklyn and became a newspaper reporter. Two years later he was admitted to the bar.

From that moment until his death Gaynor has lived in the midst of continual political warfare. He started it with an attack on the unlicensed saloons in Flatbush, a section of Brooklyn, and won. Then years later he led a successful fight against the so called McLaughlin ring in Brooklyn. His battle against John Y. McKane, boss of Sheepshead Bay and Coney Island, attracted nation wide attention. McKane died in Sing Sing. Gaynor was elected a justice of the supreme court of New York in 1893 on a nomination given him by Republican and Independent Democrats, was re-elected in 1907, but resigned to accept the nomination of mayor of New York city, to which office he was elected in November, 1909.

His career as mayor of New York bore the imprint of his personality in many striking innovations. As he expressed it, "I never quarreled with the organized leaders, because I was too busy. I simply went on and did my work from day to day, and kept their hands out of the public treasury."

Prior to the Democratic national convention in Baltimore in June, 1912, mention of his name was frequent in connection with the Democratic nomination for president. He did not have the support of the Democratic organization in this, however, and was not an active candidate for the honor.

Ernest Welborn was a St. Joseph visitor Saturday.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Have Faith in the Home Man.

It is true today as it was 1900 years ago that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country." The lack of appreciation by home people has caused many a man to leave a town and seek a new community in which to begin an enterprise. Thus a new industry which might have helped this town to grow was lost because its people lacked faith in the home man. The man who goes away and succeeds is readily acknowledged by the people of his home town as a genius. Many an inventor and many a projector of new enterprises has had this experience; it is common, indeed, to all mankind. Persons in many communities have not sufficiently appreciated what their neighbors were accomplishing or could achieve and so many a man has gone elsewhere and found the recognition that was denied him at home. Give credit and backing to the home man. Have faith in him and encourage him. If this is done fully and freely it will go a long way toward keeping at home many a man who otherwise will go elsewhere to find moral and financial backing.

There is genius in this town as well as in any other. If you know of a man who has something to develop, don't let him go elsewhere. Help him to get a start right here. Commercial enterprises are a benefit to any town, and we should have sufficient pride in this town to want it to grow.—American Lumberman.

The Gossip.

None can hope to hold a candle for persistence in the vandal who goes peddling bits of scandal up and down the village street; when he should be busy hoeing in the garden patch or mowing on foul errands he is going, traveling on eager feet. "Have you heard the latest story on J. William Hunkydory?" asks the scandalmonger hoary, as you try to pass him by, "Have you heard what they are tellin' on Jim Rooster's sister Ellen?" And the weird and wicked felon then repeats some evil lie. Maybe when this freak was younger for good tales he had a hunger, but become a scandalmonger, nothing suits him but a base; ne'er a word of admiration for a soul in all the nation, not one of appreciation ever trickles from his face. Does he ever pause to wonder why in thunder people try to stand from under when his voice he would upraise, why the people dodge and shun him—save the ones who come to dun him—why they show a wish to run him from the village 'twixt two days? This is true, my friends, be jabers; if you lie about your neighbors, then the wages for your labors will be deathless with scorn and hate; tell stories not demanded, doing actions underhanded, finally will see you landed where pariah congregate.—Walt Mason.

Women and Waiting.

It sometimes seems to me that this is an anguish in which we live and of which men know nothing. During the course of a long life every woman passes so many hours of still agony, when she must fold her hands and smile and wait. We cannot go out seeking the beloved, but must sit and wait until he comes. When you have had a misunderstanding it is not yours to run generously forward; you can't clap your hat on your head and say, "Here, I'll make an end to this; I'll go and find her." No; you must sit waiting for the sound of his footsteps coming toward you; wait until your whole soul is tense, wait until each sound is part of his hope deferred. All women know this pain, and when our time of waiting for a sweetheart is over the sons we love go out in the world, and again we must sit still and wait for news of the traveler. We sit and wait for our children to be born, through the long months, with the black certainty of the birth that may be death staring us in the face.

I am sorry sometimes for all women, and most of all for the impatient and tender spirits of young girls who meet this plan for the first time.—Mary Heaton Vorse, in Woman's Home Companion.

FLOWER OF NATURE

Engineer Sent to the Wild West Learned Many Things—and Love.

By GERTRUDE MARY SHERIDAN.

A fairer picture Burt Dawson fancied he had never seen, and for a minute or two he paused, screened by the leafy verdure. A girl, tall, fair, had filled her pitcher at the spring. Ere she took it up to carry it to the house, two hundred yards distant, she stood looking into the face of the radiant sunset. A golden haze surrounded her. In her simple gown, classic as that of some Roman maiden, her lithe willowy form, the bare feet not even sandaled, she reminded one of some naiad posing for portraiture in imperishable marble.

Her eye brightened as young Dawson stepped into view. All the lines of face and form became more distinctly human and expressive. She seemed to realize that his presence filled out the picture with a new and delicious intensity.

"I start on my mission in the morning," he said. "It will seem a lonely jaunt, more of a wilderness than ever after the beautiful days I have passed in this haven of rest."

"My uncle has told me," said Eloise, and paused there and a faint film seemed to dim those beautiful eyes and a quiver crossed her face. "He fears you are taking a dangerous risk, and I—"

Again she paused. Her glance dropped as Burt approached nearer. He had taken her shapely hand.

"And you?" he intimated gently, and his tones carried a tremulous thrill.

"I hope I have not brought you trouble," she said wistfully. "I wish that you would not undertake this perilous mission." Her hands began to tremble, and she plated them pleadingly upon his arm. The tears came into her eyes.

It seemed if she wanted comfort, sympathy, yes, even protection. He could not resist the appeal of that bonny wild rose face. His arm crept about her as she lifted her glance. She could not help but read the earnest lovelight in his honest eyes.

"Don't go," she whispered. "Oh, for my sake—let me go! I dare not—"

In amazement Burt felt her tear herself from his clasp, saw her dart towards the house like a hunted, frightened bird. Then he gave a quick start. Weaving his way in and out of the dense underbrush, he made out a skulking form. This Eloise had seen, this lurking presence had driven her soul to vivid alarm, just within the cherished clasp of the man who had come into her life like a gleam of sunlight.

There flashed through Burt's mind as he stood there the picture of a week past. It was a wild western district, infested by strangely rude and vicious characters. There was a barren strip on the Oklahoma side of the country that had been a place of refuge for fugitives from justice for years. He had been sent by the engineering firm employing him to inspect the district in conjunction with a new irrigation and railroad project. He had arrived at the border town of Fifield one week previous. It was necessary for him to make inquiries there before he prosecuted his journey. He had been directed to Mr. Treherne, the uncle of Eloise, who was acquainted through the entire section. He had found him to be a former itinerant preacher, but now living some miles from town and engaged in a small cooperage business. He and his niece led the truly simple life. Burt had become their welcome guest; the days had drifted on pleasantly. He had learned many things of the district he was to penetrate—and love.

Eloise was a pure, simple, beautiful flower of nature, her whole life seemed bound up in care for her uncle. One evening, however, Burt had a foretaste of the people he was destined to meet if he continued on his journey. Another uncle of Eloise, named John Rivers, accompanied by one Jeff Wadhams, came down from "the bad lands." Rivers was voluble in his demand that his niece should spend part of her time at his home over the border. Burt even surmised that it was Jeff Wadhams who was urging him to this. The eyes of the desperado told that he sought Eloise as a life partner. Very clearly Mr. Treherne told his brother-in-law that his demand would not be granted.

"I have raised her gently, educated her in my rude way," he explained. "She would languish and die in the wild, lawless life among you people."

Seemingly accepting this ultimatum, the two visitors had departed. But now both Eloise and Burt had seen the lurking Jeff, and Burt knew that this meant trouble.

"You had better keep close in the house, both of you," spoke Mr. Treherne, when he had been advised of the discovery of Jeff hanging around the place. "Rivers and Jeff and their crowd are dangerous men. It is Eloise they are after, but you, Mr. Dawson, may come in for a share of their enmity. I advise you to return to town in the morning and postpone your survey until you have a strong party with you."

At eleven o'clock that night Burt was aroused from his sleep. It was Treherne, who told him to get up and dress. Then he led him out through the house into the steel log [illegible] over the river, where he did his [illegible] cooperage tasks.

Eloise was there. She stood at [illegible] the window of the place with a [illegible] in her hand, looking every inch a [illegible] rapid daughter of the frontier. [illegible] the amazement Burt glanced [illegible] mounted on horses, armed, some [illegible] them bearing torches, were [illegible] men. Jeff Wadhams was their [illegible]

"What do you want here?" [illegible] Mr. Treherne, going to the [illegible] and Jeff came forward.

"We want a man calling [illegible] Dawson and an engineer," he [illegible] sponded. "We have information [illegible] is a spy, a disguised detective, [illegible] are going to string him up. [illegible] isn't your business, Treherne. [illegible] for him up."

"I want time to consider," spoke Mr. Treherne, and his face was grim, [illegible] Eloise kept watch and ward at the window.

"Mr. Dawson," said Treherne, "there is just one way to escape, but you must do what I say and act quickly. I shall barrel you up with a hammer and chisel, drop you into the river and you will float away while these men are wasting their time here."

"And leave Eloise to be carried away by that ruffian outside?" cried Burt. "I will die fighting, first!"

The old man was silent. He studied the face of his guest keenly.

"You love her?" he asked.

"More than my own life!" responded Burt fervently.

"Then"—slowly, solemnly — "make her your wife. Those ruffians then dare not molest her."

A barefooted bride—how strange! The hasty marriage ceremony—how thrilling! And then, at the insistency of those two who now had a claim upon him, Burt consented to be "barreled up."

"They are wicked enough to kill you if they found you here, married or not," declared Mr. Treherne, "but they dare not molest us. We will join you in Fifield at daylight."

Thirty minutes later, half a mile down the stream, Burt Dawson, safe from pursuit, broke his way out of the barrel in which he had taken a strange, sensational voyage.

Two hours later, with a posse gathered at Fifield, he was back at the old house by the river to disperse the baffled outlaw group and claim his fair barefooted bride.

HAD A MESSAGE TO DELIVER

And Auditors Understood Why President of Children's Congress Addressed Them Standing.

When President Chauncey Devere Appleton ascended the platform to preside at the one hundred and forty-ninth convening of the Children's congress, called in session extraordinary, he did not take a seat in the president's chair, as was his custom, but remained standing in rather a constrained, unnatural attitude.

"The thought I will give you to take home today," he began, the weight of a sad experience giving gravity to his voice, "is that none of you must take your mothers literally.

"I am seven, and while I believe that I have reached an age of dignity and wisdom, my mother does not always agree with me."

A groan swept over the house.

"Overcome with pain recently," he resumed, "at the slap I received from my sister when I used her oil paints in decorating my dog, I broke into tears.

"'Don't cry,' said my mother. 'Be a man!'

"'Be a man!' It sounded good to me, and I resolved to be one.

"That evening I watched my father closely, and the next day I tried to be a man.' I grumbled about my breakfast, I picked up the morning paper, and scattered it all over the house; I collected father's cigar stumps and left one on the piano, two in the fern dish, three on the dresser, and four, with ashes and matches, on the dining room tablecloth. I was swearing about my collar button when my mother heard me.

"'I am trying to "be a man!"' I cried when she grabbed me. 'You told me to be a man!' I wailed when she began to punish me.

"Brother and sister delegates, my appeal was in vain!"

Then he turned and walked stiffly and painfully from the platform. He hadn't sat down during the entire session.—Cleveland Leader.

Frigid Fido.

Mrs. Coin—Didn't you bring Fido down with you this season?

Mrs. Rox—No. The darling suffered so much with the heat that I placed him on cold storage with my furs.

Death of an Old Soldier.

Joseph Holliday Galbraith was a native of Pennsylvania, born April 26, 1834. He was married to Miss Catherine A. Kirkland of Stevenson county, at Freeport, Ill., on September 25, 1855. To this union were born nine children, of whom two survive their father—Sherman A. Galbraith of Humansville, Mo., and George F. of Pickering.

Mr. Galbraith served three years in the Union army, in Company G, Ninety-Second Illinois infantry volunteers.

Father Galbraith was converted in his youth in the Presbyterian church and was in that fold until he resided where there was no Presbyterian church, when he joined the United Brethren church. Later, for like reason, he united with the Methodist Episcopal church.

He departed this life on September 5th, 1913.

Funeral services were held on Sunday in the Methodist church at Pickering, Rev. H. J. Dueker, pastor in charge.

Interment was made in the White Oak cemetery.

Joseph Galbraith was industrious even in his old age. He was a good citizen.

REV. E. W. KILLION, Pastor.

A Good Woman Crowned.

Charlotte Elizabeth Alexander, nee Springs, was born in Merian, Williamson county, Ill., March 23, 1835. Here she resided during the time of her childhood and youth. She moved to Centerville, Ia., in 1854.

On February 28, 1855, she was married to John L. Alexander, with whom she shared the joys and sorrows of married life for over fifty-eight years. To this union there were born ten children, five of whom survive the mother—William C., Thomas J. and Charles B., all of Pickering, Mo.; Mrs. Zippora A. Adcock of Denver, Col., and James E. of Lincoln, Neb.

Mother Alexander was converted at Centerville, Ia., in 1869, and then and there joined the United Brethren church. She remained in that communion until they moved to Missouri, in 1873, when by letter she joined the Methodist Episcopal church. She departed this life in the triumph of the Christian's faith early September 7th, 1913. She reached the ripe age of 78 years and 5½ months.

The funeral services, conducted by her pastor, the Rev. H. J. Dueker, were held in the Methodist church at Pickering. Interment was made in the Oak Hill cemetery of Maryville.
